

CALL FOR DOCTORAL FORUM POSTERS

IEEE ICMLCN 2024 solicits proposals from students for the first IEEE ComSoc flagship conference dedicated to machine learning and communications networks.

IEEE ICMLCN includes a Doctoral Forum with the aim to provide an environment for junior PhD students to exchange ideas and experiences with peers in an interactive atmosphere and to get valuable feedback from senior researchers on the topics of the conference. The Doctoral Forum is a great occasion to expand on the horizon of current research trends and challenges, and to exchange experience with distinguished engineers and scholars.

The focus of discussions at the Forum will be the work in progress of early-stage PhD students, who will present posters related to their ongoing research towards the dissertation, and participate in several student activities, such as discussions on insights from industry and academia, and sessions from academics on how to be a better scientist.
